KAISER HURLS FRESH DIVISIONS INTO BATTLE!!

Big Bunny, Daffy Duck, and Little Bibbermouse, their arms loaded filled, Porky into the garage. Petunia Pig and Sylvia ruled behind them, pulling two small wagons, piled high with assorted goodies.

A few minutes later the members of the Secret Six Club were hard at work, separating their collection of odds and ends into two piles. For two weeks they had been collecting discarded articles that their neighbors, articles which could be used by the gnomes in making wagons to fit the set.

"Hey, look look at this!" Porky exclaimed suddenly, holding a large, dilapidated metal sugar bowl high in the air. "Look! He took the old bowl "It's filled with money!"

Instantly the others dropped whatever they held in their hands and rushed toward Porky. They crowded eagerly, while he pulled out a large roll of dirty, rubber bills.

"Now hold your horses, Porkie," he counseled.

Quickly Porky held out his cupped palms. A shower of coins fell into them.

The others sat in breathless silence as Porky counted the bills and coins.

"Three hundred and fifty-two dollars and fifty-six cents," Porky said finally.

"Who do you s'pose it belongs to?" Sylvia asked after a moment.

No one knew.

"Well, what are we going to do with it?" Bugs asked, shrugging his shoulders.

"We might advertise," Porky said.

"And have everybody in the country climbing all over our yard!" Bugs shook his head vehemently. "Say, I got an idea. Let's just keep still and wait to see if anybody comes around looking for a sugar bowl. Well run all the rest of the club members and keep the bowl with the money in it. How's that?"

After much talk they finally agreed to Bugs's plan. They dug a deep hole in a corner of Porky's yard, under a lilac bush and buried the sugar bowl with its precious cargo. Then they quickly finished their snack and hurried the rest of the gnome headquarters.

But after days they waited anxiously, but no one came around the sugar bowl.

Then one evening when Porky was hanging home, he heard a shout behind him. He turned and saw Frank Fenn running toward him.

"Say, Porky, did you or anyone else turn in the prettiest money you ever found?"

"Why, Porky said "What do you"

"Do you know who got my grandfather's sugar bowl?"

mother's stuff." Frank's voice was sharp with anxiety.

"You a grandmother a gave it to me." Porky said, remembering the big bowl filled with pies and pans which Frank's grandmother had given to him.

"Did you notice whether there was an old sugar bowl among the things?" Frank grabbed Porky's arm in his excitement.

"M-Maybe. W-Well does it look like?"

Frank described his grandmother's sugar bowl. It was the one which the Secret Six members had taken. There was no doubt about that.

"Will you get it for me, Porky?" Frank begged. "Headquarters I give it to you, if you ask for it. If you'll do that for me, I'll do anything for you."

"I'll try to get it and give it to you a grandmother." Porky promised.

For a moment Frank hesitated. Then he said in a low voice, "I might as well tell you the truth, Porky. I sold some of Grandma's old chairs that were in the attic, without asking her. Sold 'em to an antique collector. Then I hit the money in that old sugar bowl. I wanted to buy a special kind of accordion that Grandma said was too expensive. I went to get the money today and the sugar bowl was gone. Now I gotta get it back. You understand, don't you?"

"I-I'll have to talk it over with the club." Porky decided. "They might let it be the next treat and they know where the money."

As for Frank, pleased by what Porky agreed to give him the sugar bowl under any other conditions, he agreed. So that evening at a special meeting, Frank told his story to the six club members. After much discussion, it was finally decided that they all should go with Frank and the sugar bowl to his grandmother and tell her the whole story.

Frank's gray-haired grandmother listened in silence, while Frank told his story. The Secret Seven sat quietly in their chairs, unmoving.

"I'm sorry I did it, Grandma," Frank concluded. "I'll never do anything like that again I promise."

"I'm sure you won't, Frank," his grandmother said in her soft voice. "And if you're good I'll add enough money to your own savings to buy that accordion for your next birthday."

Then she put the sugar bowl with its pieces correct into Porky's hands.

"I want you to take this money to buy war savings bonds and stamps and I want you to divide them equally among you six club members and Frank," she said quietly. Then she added with a smile, "You may return the sugar bowl to your chum."

THERE, THERE BUMPY! BLOW HARD IN MY HANKY AND STOP YER BAWLIN'!

BOO HOO! OW-OO-.. BLUB-UB!

HE ISN'T VERY BRAVE FOR A SEALION BUT HE'S A GOOD HOUSE PET. I'M OLD JACK TAR, A SHIPWRECKED MARINER!

WE'RE PAT, PATSY AND PENGUIN PETE--AND I GUESS WE'RE AS GOOD AS SHIPWRECKED!

BOO-HOO! SNUFF! SNIFF!

WHAT SHALL WE DO WITH THE CRAB, PLEASE, MR.TAR?

THE CRAB?..OH YES, TO BE SURE..WE'LL DROP HIM INTO MY POT AND COOK HIM FOR SUPPER!

HERE'S THE POT- JUST LEAVE HO AND WATCH OUT FOR THE SPLASH!

HOLD THAT STICK HIGHER, PATSY!

OH,PAT! IT'S A REAL HOUSE INSIDE!

NOW, WHILE SUPPER IS COOKING, WE'LL TURN OUT A PROPER SUIT OF SAILS FOR YOU, NEW SHIP-MATES!

YOU MEAN CLOTHES? OH, HAVE YOU ANY TO FIT US, MR.TAR?

YOU CAN LEAVE ME OUT UNLESS YOU HAPPEN TO HAVE A CLEAN HANKY TO SPARE!

I'LL MAKE YOU SOME CLOTHES OUT OF THIS CLOTH I SALVAGED WHEN MY SHIP DROVE ASHORE!

THAT'S PRETTY CLOTH! BUT I NEVER KNEW THAT A MAN COULD MAKE A DRESS!

ALL OLD SAILORS CAN SEW, YOU KNOW.. ESPECIALLY WITH A GOOD MACHINE!

AH! SEW IT SEEMS!

THERE, PATSY! JUST RUN BEHIND THAT CURTAIN IN THE CORNER AND TRY IT ON!

OH THANK YOU! IT'S LOVELY.. AND I KNOW IT WILL FIT!

NOT BAD-NOT BAD EVEN IF THE CUT OF IT DOES SUGGEST A COCOANUT MAINSAIL!

HOW DOES IT FEEL TO BE RIGGED OUT IN NEW CANVAS, SHIPMATE?

IT FEELS FUNNY - ESPECIALLY OVER MY NEW SUNBURN!

POW-OW WA-A-A-H!

BLIMPY IS CALLING ME. SOMETHING'S WRONG, MATE!

PERHAPS ANOTHER CRAB PINCHED HIM!

I THINK THAT SEA LION IS A BIG FALSE ALARM!

AVAST, YOU FUZZY-HEADED HEATHEN! THAT'S MY LAST UNDERSHIRT!

A CANNIBAL! BUT I THOUGHT THIS WAS A DESERT ISLAND!

HOKERY POKERY WUNKERY HUM GUATCHERY GARTERY MARINER MAN. CANNIBAL LEAVE, CANNIBAL LAM. HUMPERY GELPERY QUICKERY CAN!

TOO LOW AGAIN!

WAIT, KEEP YOUR EYE ON THE BALL!

I HAVEN'T ANY MORE RED WOOL!

HERE'S YOUR SHIRT, SHIPMATE--IT CAUGHT ON A THORN AND UNRAVELLED--SO I JUST WOUND IT UP AGAIN!

BLOW ME DOWN! YOU'VE SAVED MY YARN! I CAN KNIT ANOTHER SHIRT IN NO TIME!

OH MR. TAR --I'M SO GLAD!

YOU'RE A TRUE FRIEND, PENGUIN PETE --WHEN A SHIP SEES MY RED SHIRT FLYIN' AT THE MASTHEAD AND COMES TO RESCUE US, WE'LL HAVE YOU TO THANK FOR IT, SEE?
